Clean Up.

One of the duties that the spring time brings with it is the removal of any filth that has accumulated around your premises during the long winter months. When the snow covers the ground, like charity, it is made by many to hide a multitude of sins in the shape of garbage, ashes and general rubbish.
The temptation to be slothful and even filthy, appears to be irresistible in some people, providing they can cover the evidence of their carelessness and laziness. Spring comes to light all the violations of the laws of order and cleanliness, and for the health of the people imposes the task of putting things to rights. Now that the spring weather has arrived, a general cleaning campaign should be promptly and thoroughly opened.
So clean up, or the inspector will be after you with a vengeance.

—A long communication from Lorrie informs us that a great deal of dissatisfaction is felt at the election of trustees for that district, and claims that the school should and could be run on a more economical plan. Some time ago we in an unguarded moment published a letter regarding this same school district, and for weeks after were besieged with long denials, etc. As we have no wish to put our foot in it again we have thought best to suppress this communication. We are not millionaires and cannot afford to hire more help to set up long articles or increase the size of our paper at present. While always willing to publish anything that may be of interest we must insist upon brevity.

—Complaints are now frequent regarding the delivery of the mail at this station. Twice within the last two weeks has the Winnipeg mail been carried past this point, and people have had to wait for train from the west in the evening, which on Saturday was belated seventeen hours late. Other complaints a couple of days ago regarding papers from the east going astray.

MANITOBA LEGISLATURE.

THE HOUSE PROROGUED BY HIS HONOR THE LIEUT.-GOVERNOR.

The Member for St. Boniface stoutly Opposes any Bonusing—Mr. Greenway Gives Some Interesting Facts and Figures Concerning the British Empire.

Thursday, March 25.

The report of the public accounts committee was presented to the legislature this afternoon by Mr. Thompson and received. It found the accounts, vouchers, etc., and recommended the writing off from the debtors side an item, Alexander Begg, $3,178.41, which had been standing for some years, and from the credit side, of several small items of amounts received from parties long since dead.

Mr. Myers presented the 14th report of the committee on the municipal boundaries act. The report was received. Mr. Marion moved the second reading of the bill to legalize by-law 117 of the corporation of the town of St. Boniface. Mr. Pare seconded the motion.

Hon. Mr. Cameron opposed the motion as infringing upon the policy adopted by the legislature ever since he had been a member. The by-law had been illegally carried. The town had an assessment of $50,000 or $20,000, and a delinquent debt of $5,000, some of which was at a pretty high rate of interest, and yet it was proposed to plunge itself still further into debt. The secretary in such cases often proved entirely illusory and entirely non-forcible.

Mr. Laurion was against all bonuses. He knew the town of St. Boniface, having lived there for sixteen years, and having been a member of the council for eleven years. The town needed sidewalks but had not money to lay them. It would be better to build a bridge at the foot of Market street. The first thing they knew the town would be bankrupt. He had voted against the by-law. He referred to the town of Morris as having been ruined by bonusing. St. Boniface was not in a very bad condition, but would be if they kept on doing that. He was sure the people would be very glad if the bill did not pass.

Hon. Mr. Greenway said his position with regard to bonuses was pretty well known. He had always opposed them during the eighteen years he had been in the legislature. The house had got themselves into trouble several times by legalizing by-laws in which some information had been given; but they had never legalized a by-law submitted to the people in direct opposition to the law of the province. If the house passed this, other municipalities might take the action as a precedent.

Mr. Fisher regarded the action of St. Boniface as being the same as if the city of Winnipeg should borrow $100,000 to build university buildings, having no power to do so. He opposed the motion.

The second reading of the bill was then voted on and defeated.

Friday, March 26th.

On the opening of the legislature, Hon. Mr. Greenway moved, seconded by Mr. Fisher, leader of the Opposition. That a special committee of the United Kingdom, composed of some members of the house as are of the executive council, and Messrs. Roblin and Fisher, to draft and report an address of congratulation to Her Most Gracious Majesty, the Queen, on attaining the sixtieth anniversary of her accession to the throne.

The mover gave some facts and figures showing the magnitude of the British empire. Referring to a work entitled "Fifty Years' Progress," he said the population of the British empire constituted one-half of the habitable globe. The mother country was but 1.7 of the whole empire. The British empire was five times as large as that of Russia, four times that of Rome, one eighth larger than Russia and containing 230,000,000 additional millions of people; it was sixteen times the size of France, and three times that of the United States of America.

Giving figures to show the development that had taken place he said the total population of the United Kingdom when Her Majesty ascended the throne was 25,500,000; to-day it was 29,000,000, notwithstanding that so many had left and gone to the utmost corners of the earth. The population of our own Dominion of Canada in 1857 was 1,267,000; to-day in round figures it is 5,000,000. At that time the population of the American colonies was 13,100,000; to-day it is 3,171,000. The colony of the Cape of Good Hope had then 128,850 souls; the last year's census showed it to be 1,772,000. The railway system was then just in its infancy, now in the United Kingdom alone there were 21,000 miles of railway constructed; in the United States the figure was 22,000 miles, and in this country, yet so great was the volume of business, the system paid dividends of 4 per cent. Then there was a standing army of 120,000; now of 198,000, besides which there were 100,000 militia volunteers, not to speak of the navy, then consisting of 81 small ships, now of formidable ironclads. The premier further spoke of the progress in the educational system. At the commencement of the reign there was no national system of education. He contrasted the illiteracy then existing with the intelligence of the present, and pointed out the effect of the universal education in the empire.

The annual arrests of criminals then numbered 57,175; last year the number was 27,745, a decrease of 70 per cent, although the population had increased over 50 per cent. The number of weekly newspapers distributed in the United Kingdom and Ireland in 1857 it had now increased to 32,000,000. There were then thirteen different crimes specified for which the penalty was death; and in one year there were 671 executions. Now the penalty was inflicted for the crime of murder, and there had been seventeen executions in one year. In connection with the change in the penal system, he noted that in 1857 the number of hanged and executed by the gallows was 3,000, and in 1896 against 27,000,000 in 1896. The first message across the Atlantic to New York in 1858. When a lad he crossed the ocean with his parents it took six weeks to arrive at Quebec; since then he had crossed in about six days. The first telegraph had been sent between France and England in 1857; and some months later the first message flashed across the Atlantic. Electricity had done much, and would doubtless do more; and machinery of the labor-saving kind had been greatly developed. The queen had survived all the members of the house of lords at the time she ascended the throne, and all the members of her first house of commons except Gladstone and two or three others; ten prime ministers and six speakers had taken office during her reign. She had survived every member of her first privy council. Her empire has a territory of 11,334,329 square miles, and a population of 382,412,178. It was a grand thing to say that there was symmetry between all parts of the empire, as evidenced by the response to the call on behalf of the famishing in India, a response which, in this province, has exceeded that from any other province of the Dominion in proportion to population. The form of government has been established on firm foundations, and the best that exists under the sun. It is a matter of congratulation to us that now, in the declining years of her life, Her Majesty finds herself more firmly than ever in the affections of her people. He was sure the members of the house would join in the wish that she might be spared many years yet before being called to her rest, and that her successor, he felt like saying, with renewed energy, "God Save the Queen."

Mr. Roblin, in seconding the motion, heartily endorsed everything that had been said testifying respect and loyalty to her Majesty, also in respect to the growth and development of the empire. The two most notable periods of English history were those of the queen, and the queen Elizabeth, or "Good Queen Bess," and that of Victoria. To the former he ascribed the laying of the foundation upon which the great superstructure of British greatness had been built. Coming to the beginning of Victoria's reign, he spoke of the peacefulness and danger of civil war which existed, and the era of prosperity that began almost immediately upon her accession to the throne, and had continued down to the present. He referred to the great statesmanship, particularly of Disraeli and Gladstone, which had contributed to this stability to secure a less expensive building for Government house, and use the present Government house for the commencement of a university building, in view of the advantages of the location.

Hon. Mr. Cameron replied that Government house was vested in the province for a certain purpose, and this government could not undertake to confiscate it at the present time.

Hon. Mr. Cameron read certain clauses, providing for regulations of the university, empowering the council to make such. The grant of $50,000 he said, was intended to refer only to salaries and maintenance in connection with the scientific branches. It did not include the $5,000 previously given.

Mr. Roblin said he was opposed to the province becoming committed for any considerable sum for a provincial university at present; the province could not afford it.

Mr. Fisher asked to be allowed to make a personal explanation. He had been pained beyond his power of expressing it to find that the leader of the Opposition had thought he had been personally discredited.

Mr. Roblin was the last member of the house whom he would think of treating with discourtesy. He proceeded to explain that it was a sense of duty that had led him to object to his name being used as second to Mr. Roblin's motion for adjournment. He admitted that the motion was not a motion of courtesy, though not approving of its object. That would be to enable the motion to come before the house. But in this case, according to his view of it, the motion was in itself an improper one to put before the house under the circumstances. He quoted from the English and Canadian common law, to show that it was clear and well established rule that motions to adjourn for the purpose of discussion, were strictly reserved for cases of great urgency and gravity. Such a motion once admitted, was, however, quite in order, and could not be refused by the speaker. According to the decisions quoted the responsibility was put on the members of the house to prevent abuses of the practice by abstaining from offering such motions unless for urgent and grave reasons. No such reason justified Mr. Roblin's motion, which was made simply to enable him to criticize any remarks made in the commons the other day touching alleged evil practices at the recent federal elections. To present such a motion was under the recognized practice, an improper proceeding in itself. For that reason, and that alone, he had objected to the motion being seconded. He discovered any error in his own discourse to the leader of the opposition.
